

PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATES FIGHT ORATORICAL DUEL

ROOSEVELT PROMISES "ACTION"

Democrat Candidate Hits Republican Campaign Intimidating Voters

COERCION DENOUNCED

Shorter Working Day and Week Is Advocated

With Governor Roosevelt, Boston, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Governor Roosevelt, in the last major speech of his presidential campaign, told a Boston audience that President Hoover "abandoned argument for personalities."

A few minutes after Mr. Hoover finished speaking last night in New York City, the Democratic presidential candidate, said "at first the president refused to recognize that he was in a contest, but as the people have responded to our program with enthusiasm he recognized that we were both candidates."

"And then," Mr. Roosevelt added, "dignity died. At Indianapolis he spoke of my arguments—misquoting them. He went further, he abandoned arguments for personalities."

The nominee declared "I shall not yield to the temptation to which the president yielded. On the contrary I reiterate my respect for his person and his office."

Roosevelt asserted "the Democratic party is not satisfied merely with arresting the present decline, but we seek to build up and improve, to put industry into a position where opportunity will be given to re-employ the millions of workers who were laid off."

In stating his program for unemployment relief, the Governor asserted that it was the duty of the federal government to step into the breach when the states, localities and private charity failed to provide adequately.

Secondly, he said, the federal government should provide temporary work wherever possible in the national forests, on flood prevention and in the development of waterway projects already authorized, which would give at least temporary employment to thousands.

Thirdly, said the candidate, the federal government should expedite the actual construction of public

BANK ROBBER'S CAR FOUND IN MICHIGAN

Toledo, O., Nov. 1.—(AP)—The automobile in which eight robbers fled yesterday afternoon with $35,000 after raiding the First National Bank of Monroe, Mich., was found today near a woods one mile south of Sylvania, Ohio.

In the car, Mayor Harry Quinnell and Marshall Oscar McCullay of Sylvania found the Illinois license plates, Monroe police said were on the bandits' car, and cancelled checks taken from the Monroe bank. Six bullet holes were found in the body of the car.

It was believed the robbers went on in another machine.

BUSINESS HOLIDAY ORDERED IN NEVADA

Reno, Nev., Nov. 1.—(AP)—A business and bank "holiday" extending until November 12 was declared throughout the state of Nevada today by Lieutenant Governor Morley Griswold, acting in the absence of Governor Fred B. Balzar who is in the east.

The lieutenant governor said the reason he was calling the "holiday" was "the conviction that business, banks, bank depositors and the entire people of the state of Nevada will be best protected by the action."

HOUSES CRASH INTO SEA AS STORM RAGES

New York Nov. 1.—(AP)—A score of bungalows built on stilts long Jamaica Bay at Broad Channel were hurled into the water by wind and waves today, men women and children being dumped into the bay. Shortly after the first houses fell fire broke out in the flimsy bungalow colony.

The first bungalows to be torn from their stilts were three above the waterline. One was unoccupied. About a dozen occupants of the other two were treated by ambulance doctors for minor injuries.

The houses built directly over the water began to tear from their supports under the pound of waves raised by a high wind.

One after another they tumbled into the rollers and the cries of tenants hurled into the waves or trapped in the half-submerged houses drew a large crowd which was unable to give any great assistance.

Police rescue squads and ambulances were arriving on the scene as fire suddenly added a new terror to the already panic stricken bungalow dwellers.

Broad Channel is a part of Jamaica Bay that runs between the mainland and Rockaway Beach. The bay was whipped by high wind all last night and today and waves ran higher than they had been seen there for a long time.

POLICEMEN PUT ON PETTING PARTY TO FOOL YOUNG PARK SCAVENGERS

Chicago, Nov. 1.—(AP)—What appeared to be a carefully groomed woman sat in an automobile with Police Sergeant John Orgel and gazed at the landscape in the vicinity of Chicago Heights.

"Lean on my shoulder," commanded the sergeant, "put your head against my cheek, and your arm around my neck, and incidentally, throw away your cigar."

Presently, as the police tell it, two youths appeared, one of them said:

"This is a stick-up; get out."

There were several shots. Later the sergeant and his companion and the two youths whose names were given as Walter Wheeler and Arthur Gray went to a police station. Gray was wounded.

"And who is this?" inquired Lieutenant Mike Donovan, pointing to Orgel's companion.

"Me?" said the "lady." "I'm Policeman Henry Freckleton disguised as a decoy. And if you want to know why one of the prisoners is so badly wounded, I'll tell you. I was holding my shots in a peaceable manner when somebody looked up at me and said:

"Holy smoke, we've stuck up Miss America."

BANKER IS WANTED ON FORGERY CHARGE

Cleveland, Nov. 1.—(AP)—A warrant was issued in the district attorney's office here today for the arrest of Joseph Stavina, a teller at the First Central Bank, Akron, on a charge of misapplication of $33,463.

The misapplication extended back to September, 1931, it was said by federal officials.

Deputy Marshal Andrew Gibson left Cleveland to arrest Stavina, who was to be arraigned before U. S. Commissioner William J. Laub in Akron and then be brought to jail here.

Assistant United States District Attorney William McDermott said Stavina, foreign exchange teller in a branch of the First Central, forged withdrawal slips on accounts of foreign laborers.

Pittsburgh —(AP)—Thirty eight veteran Pennsylvania railroad employees retired today, joining 11,000 other pensioners on the railroad's honor roll.

Storms Lashing South With Wind And Rain More Than 30 Hurt

Tornadoes Hit Three Communities in Alabama, Georgia and Mississippi—Negro Girl Killed

Birmingham, Ala., Nov. 1.—(AP)—Wind and rainstorms that whipped the southeast, killing one and injuring more than 30 others left behind them wreckage and chilling weather today.

Tornadoes struck at three points in Dixie yesterday. At Cowarts near Dothan, Ala., a negro girl was killed and twenty, including eight white persons, were injured. A dozen more were hurt at Cairo, Ga., and at Longbeach near Gulfport, Miss., tornado winds ripped up trees and damaged buildings.

Most of the southeast got a thorough wetting.

The twister at Cowarts bowled over structures along three blocks before most of the residents knew of its arrival. Communication lines were torn down.

Mississippi's wind storm passed through the college wharf, damaged homes and blew out windows.

Relief crews took up the trail of the Alabama storm late yesterday to give relief where needed in the rural sections.

'HUNGER MARCH' LEADER NABBED

Tip That Delegation Was to Go to Parliament Leads to Raid

London, Nov. 1.—(AP)—The police raided the headquarters of the National Unemployed Workers' Movement today and arrested W. A. L. Hannington, organizer of the "Hunger" army's march on London, which has precipitated two bloody riots within a week.

It was understood Hannington, who planned to defy tradition by leading a deputation on parliament tonight, would be taken to Bow Street station and charged with violation of laws in connection with the Trafalgar Square riots of Sunday.

More than 70 persons were injured in a bloody melee in Hyde Park last Thursday, the day the National "hunger army" of 2,000 men trekked into London from all parts of the nation.

A dozen or so were injured Sunday when thousands of unemployed gathered in Trafalgar and made a dash for Buckingham Palace, the King's residence, and government buildings in Whitehall. They responded to the shrill voice of a gray haired dark-complexioned man who dashed toward the Palace with the cry, "Smash the Palace windows!"

Twenty detectives raided Hannington's office and arrested him while he was talking to a reporter. The officers immediately took charge of the rooms where clerks and typists were preparing for tonight's demonstrations.

Meanwhile London's volunteer police, which were called to duty for the first time since the general strike of 1926 for the Trafalgar riots, reported today to many parts of London to relieve regular police and traffic officers. The regulars will rest until tonight, awaiting the demonstration.

PRETTY BOY BANDIT IN ANOTHER HOLDUP

Sallisaw, Okla., Nov. 1.—(AP)—Three men, two of them identified by witnesses as Charles (Pretty Boy) Floyd and George Birdwell, much sought bank robbers and killers, held up the Sallisaw State Bank today. The amount of the loot was not determined immediately.

The robbers fled in a motor car toward Fort Smith, Ark., pursued by a posse organized by Sheriff George Cheek.

Bob Biggs, assistant cashier, was forced to accompany the trio, but was released unharmed at the edge of the city. He and other witnesses identified Floyd who formerly lived here.

The robbers were expected to turn north somewhere east of Sallisaw into the mountain country known as a hideaway of Floyd and his gang.

GRAIN PIT PRICES TOLL OF POLITICIANS

SUCH IS CHARGE MADE BY DEMOCRATIC CHAIRMAN.

New York, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Arthur F. Mullen of Nebraska, vice chairman of the Democratic National Committee, asserted today that "Secret manipulations can easily put up the price of wheat until after election and then put it down again to a new all time low."

Mullen sent the following telegram to individuals and newspapers all over the country commenting on Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde's order of October 22, modifying restrictions in the grain futures act.

"This order sets aside the provision in the grain futures act of 1922 intended to prevent secret manipulations of the grain market. Manipulations apparently started immediately after order as wheat dropped to a new all time low. The same secret manipulations can easily put up the price of wheat until after election and then put it down again to a new all time low. No one knows what the manipulators intend to do unless it be Mr. Everett Saunders, chairman of the Republican committee who is also counsel at Washington for grain exchanges in the United States."

PRINCE OF WALES TO WED, IS RUMOR

Stockholm, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Stockholm newspapers openly discussed rumors today that the engagement of Princess Ingrid to Prince George or the Prince of Wales will be announced in London, on Nov. 11.

The newspapers added that the announcement might be made at a dinner in the British capital celebrating the 50th anniversary of the birthday of the Princess' father. The time and circumstance of the dinner was accepted as unusually propitious for the announcement if it is to be made, and there is the possibility also that the recently wed Prince Gustaf Adolf of Sweden and Princess Sibylla may attend the affair.

BURIED TREASURE IN KENTUCKY CAVE

Greenup, Ky., Nov. 1.—(AP)—Enthusiasm for a treasure hunt stirred this town today following the discovery in a cave of 12 nuggets which apparently are gold.

Three Greenup men, L. G. Stapf, undertaker; Dr. C. P. Norton and Edward Wellman planned to act today to secure mineral rights to land surrounding the cave, 18 miles southwest of here, near the Carter county line.

The men were led to the cave by two boys, John and Troy Holbrook and besides the nuggets found Indian relics and a petrified human arm.

The cavern is in an obscure place and the party had to crawl into it on their hands and knees. The nuggets have withstood what some termed "acid tests" for gold.

MISSING BOY "HOBONO" IS BELIEF NOW

Cleveland, O., Nov. 1.—(AP)—Eight-year-old Ebert Holleron, mysteriously missing 10 days, was presumed today to be alive and leading the life of a "hobo" somewhere west of this city.

After police and scores of other searchers had about decided the boy was dead, word was received from Lorain last night that Ebert was there October 23, a day after he vanished from his home in Cleveland.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Judge and their son, Robert, 11, identified a picture of the Holleron boy as of a youngster who dropped off a freight train near their home, accompanied by a man who he said was a "friend."

The two train riders were given food by Mr. and Mrs. Judge. Then, the supposed Holleron boy asked Robert if he could play with the latter's football, and said, "I'm eight years old but I know all about football."

In addition to identifying the photograph, Mrs. Judge said the boy was "awfully dirty," but that she noticed his light, tangled hair, and that he had lost a tooth. Her entire description of the lad tallied closely with that of the missing boy.

The story told by the Judge family brought cheer and renewed hope to Ebert's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Holleron, and was the first tangible evidence tending to establish that the boy is still alive.

However, the present whereabouts of Ebert remained a mystery. The visit to the Judge home in Lorain was nine days ago, and since then the boy might have traveled great distances.

With this realization, Cleveland police requested railroad detectives throughout the middlewest to be on the watch for the lad.

Ebert's mother was totally unable to explain why he might have run away.

Showing the effects of worrying for her lost child, Mrs. Holleron nevertheless kept up hope. "He's alive," she persisted several days ago, even when police adopted a tentative theory that he might have been killed by a degenerate or by a hit-skip auto driver. "I know he's alive and he'll come back to me," she said.

BOY SHOT BY WOMAN ON HALLOWE'EN EVE

Marietta, O., Nov. 1.—(AP)—Edward Fenton, 11, son of Herbert Fenton, prominent manufacturer of Williamstown, W. Va., opposite Marietta, was shot and wounded severely last night during a Halloween festivities.

Police said the lad and several playmates threw corn against the window of the Myron W. Athey home and that Clara Athey, 29, a daughter, fired a revolver into the crowd of boys. The bullet struck young Fenton in the hip and lodged near the spine. Chief of Police Clack Bush said that charges of shooting with attempt to kill probably would be filed against the girl.

ARMY PLANE CRASHES ON O. S. U. CAMPUS

Columbus, O., Nov. 1.—(AP)—An army observation plane, flying from Kansas City to Port Columbus, crashed up in a forced landing on Ohio State University campus today. The pilot, Captain M. C. Harper and his observer, Lieut. C. G. Kenny, both of Mitchell Field, L. I. were uninjured.

Captain Harper said his motor failed and he was forced to come down on the Girls' Athletic field. The plane narrowly missed a co-ed physical education class which was on the field. The undercarriage and lower left wing of the plane were torn off.

Hallowe'en Parade Is Called Off When Rain Drenches City

Some Mischief Reported but Vandalism Conspicuous This Year by Its Absence

The Weather Man proved to be the big bugaboo in the Halloween celebration here Monday night, and by pouring cold water, in large quantities and incessantly upon the community, almost completely routed the other and lesser bugaboos, ghosts, hobgoblins, and what not, that were all set for a night of high revelry, but whose spirits were sadly dampened by the down-pour of rain.

As a result of the activities of the weather man, the customary big parade and celebration planned by the Toastmasters and Civic Association was called off early in the evening, and only a few of the more brave spirits ventured forth on the streets in anticipation of the parade and celebration.

Those who did come out in costume quickly retreated when they learned there would be no celebration, while quite a number, chiefly traveling by automobile, rambled about the city for sometime, doing a small amount of mischief, but, so far as reported to the police, no serious damage.

Three extra police were on duty, and the day men were also at headquarters subject to call. While numerous complaints were made of mischief being done, the revelers were on the move before the police arrived.

Finally the police sent out a patrol car manned by two officers who kept the mischief makers on the move until around 10:30, when the marauding celebrants wilted under the downpour and little complaint was heard from then on.

Outside of a few acts of vandalism, the mischief consisted chiefly of moving neglected objects from place to place, pushing wagons about, placing signs and other objects in the street, and other stunts.

It was the most quiet Halloween in the city in recent years, according to the police.

As the night of All Things Supernatural was Monday night, the Toastmasters Club and Rotary committee decided that there would be no subsequent celebration; so that Halloween is at an end insofar as celebration is concerned.

Surrounding villages in the county experienced about the same experiences as here in the city. Some evidence of devilry greeted the early risers Tuesday morning, but little actual destruction was reported to authorities. Fewer barricaded highways than ever before were reported.

There was a noticeable lack of the usual pre-Hallowe'en nuisances and vandalism this year, police say. They are unable to account for the "tameless" or over-energetic youth except by the warning issued well in advance by the authorities.

BEEDY IS BACK IN LIMA ASYLUM

Pair of Mad Convicts Found at Delphos

Chester Beedy, 27, killer of Clyde Rowe in this city and sent to the state hospital for the criminal insane at Lima after admitting the crime here and being indicted on a first degree murder charge, was recaptured at Delphos, Monday afternoon, after having escaped from the Lima institution Saturday night. Delphos is about 15 miles from Lima.

With Beedy was Jasper Brown, negro, of Columbus, who had made his escape with Beedy. The two men were promptly returned to the Lima prison, and will be kept under closer guard in future.

Cold and water soaked after having wandered in the rain, the two fugitives had sought refuge in a small building in the stock yards at Delphos, and kindled a fire. Passersby, noticed the smoke, summoned the police, who took the two men into custody. They surrendered without resistance and were promptly returned to the Lima institution.

A lookout had been maintained in this city after it was learned that Beedy was at large, as it was feared he would return with the intention of carrying out his threat of killing Dorothy Edwards, the girl with whom he had been keeping company and who was with Clyde Rowe the night of the murder. The Edwards girl escaped death when Beedy's automatic pistol jammed.

BANDITS GET $3,000 IN KENTUCKY BANK

Simpsonville, Ky., Nov. 1.—(AP)—Four youthful robbers who obtained approximately $3,000 in the robbery of the bank of Simpsonville were sought today.

The robbers, dressed in overalls, escaped yesterday in an automobile bearing West Virginia license plates. Four persons were locked in the bank's vaults, after being forced back at the points of pistols. They were rescued a half-hour later.

'Immeasurable Benefits' Under Republican Rule Claimed by Hoover

LOUD WARNING ISSUED

Against Reactionaries Who Challenge Administration

By NATHAN ROBERTSON.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 1.—(AP)—Returning to the White House today with plans for winding up his re-election drive in the west, President Hoover left behind him in New York an assertion that Democratic campaign proposals would "break down our form of government."

Preparations for a western trip beginning Thursday, which probably would carry him to the west coast for election day, were under preparation as the President's train carried him to Washington from New York where he told a Madison Square Garden rally last night that Governor Roosevelt's proposal for "a new deal" would "destroy the American system" of life, which he said though not perfect had brought "immeasurable benefits."

The New York speech was the big event in one of the busiest days of campaigning ever indulged in by the Chief Executive.

During the day the President was cheered by more people than on any of his previous campaign jaunts, but he also heard boos in Philadelphia and New York that the cheering did not quite drown. The New York reception, with its crowded streets, showering ticker tape and confetti, intermittent applause, an army of police and waving flags was a repetition of those that he had received in rapid succession during the day at Baltimore, Philadelphia, Newark and cities in between.

Before the Chief Executive could begin his speech, an excited man shouted down from one of the high balconies, "You're a liar." He repeated it over and over until those near him, and a half dozen police (Continued on Page Three.)

TENEMENT PROJECT FINANCED BY R.F.C.

Washington, Nov. 1.—(AP)—The Reconstruction Corporation today agreed to lend $3,957,000 to the Hillside Housing Corporation of New York City for construction of a neighborhood unit of low rental apartments to house 1,581 families. The loan is the first under that section of the Reconstruction Finance act permitting loans to corporations formed for the purpose of eliminating slum areas.

New York is the only state that comes under this section, due to the fact that such corporations must be regulated by state or municipal law as to rents, charges, capital structure, rate of return and areas and methods of operation.

The Hillside Housing Corporation is a private concern.

PRESIDENT'S SPEECH FOR "POWER TRUST"

Seattle, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Records of President Hoover and Franklin Roosevelt were pictured by Senator George W. Norris, independent Republican of Nebraska campaign for the New York Governor, as creating a contest in the presidential campaign "between monopoly and the people."

The senator predicted the "power trust" would probably print and distribute the president's speech as part of a campaign against public ownership.

QUICKLY SOLVE ROBBERY HERE

Pair Admit Burglarizing Local Garage

Thurman Tomlinson and Kenneth Kelly, both white and both having served time in one of the State correctional institutions, were taken into custody by Police-men Shasteen and Ellis, Tuesday morning, after being suspected of robbing the Rodney Morris garage of $14.97 Monday night, and within a short time a confession had been obtained, whereupon they were placed in jail to await formal arraignment on burglary charges.

Entrance had been gained by forcing a side window, and the money, kept in a cigar box, was taken while nothing else was disturbed.

Tomlinson and Kelly were immediately suspected because Tomlinson had been employed at the place and Kelly had performed odd jobs about the garage.

In his confession Tomlinson said he entered the place, and that he divided the money with Kelly, who was a party to the crime.

Kelly also admitted his part in the affair, according to the police.

Tomlinson had $9.31 in his pockets when arrested, and Kelly had $5.66.

Tomlinson is out on parole from the Mansfield Reformatory, and Kelly, native of this city, has served two terms at Lancaster Boys Industrial School.

mailed him and dragged him out of the garden.

Telling his vast audience that "This philosophy upon which the governor of New York proposes to conduct the presidency of the United States is the philosophy of stagnation, of despair," the President listed eight "proposals of our opponents that will endanger or destroy our system."

"This campaign," Mr. Hoover said, "is more than a contest between two men. It is more than a contest between two parties. It is a contest between two philosophies of government."

The President said the changes proposed by the "Democratic principals and allies are the most profound and penetrating character."

"Let us pause for a moment and examine the American system of government, of social and economic life which it is now proposed that we should alter," he added.

"It is a system peculiar to the American people. It differs essentially from all others in the world. It is an American system."

Reviewing improvements in American life during the last generation, the President said:

"The 30 years of incomparable improvement in the scale of living, the advance of comfort and intellectual life, inspiration and ideals did not arise without right principle animating the American system which produced them. Shall this system be discarded because vote-seeking men appeal to distress and say that the machinery is all wrong and that it must be abandoned? Should not our purpose be to restore the normal working of that system which has brought us such immeasurable benefits and not destroy it?"

The President then listed some of the proposals of the Democrats which he said would "endanger or destroy our system."

These proposals, the President said, include:

"Expansion of government expenditure by yielding to sectional and group raids on the public treasury."

"Inflation of the currency."

"Extend the government into the personal banking business."

"Reduce the protective tariff to a comparative tariff for revenue."

"Placing the government into the power business."

"A promise to promote employment for all surplus labor at all times."

In discussing the tariff question, Mr. Hoover said whole towns and communities were built up and were dependent upon the Republican protective tariff system.

"The grass will grow in streets of a hundred cities, a thousand towns, the weeds will overrun the fields of millions of farms if that protection be taken away," he said.

The President characterized as "absolutely destructive" the proposal he said was made by Roosevelt to support self-liquidating public works sufficient to provide employment for "all surplus labor at all times."

Continuing his speech, the Chief Executive said "we have heard a great deal in this campaign about reactionaries, conservatives, progressives, liberals and radicals." He interpolated at this point that "I think I belong to every group."

"Men who are going about this country announcing they are liberals because of their promises to extend the government into business are not liberals," the President added, "they are reactionaries of the United States."

In conclusion, he said:

"I have already stated that Democracy must remain master in its own house. I have stated that abuse and wrongdoing must be punished and controlled. Nor do I wish to be misinterpreted as stating that the United States is a free-for-all and devil-take-the-hindmost society."

"I am not setting up the contention that our American system is perfect."

"But we have in the past seen in time of distress and difficulty that wrongdoing and weakness come to the surface and our people, in their endeavor to correct these wrongs, are tempted to extremes which may destroy rather than build. It is men who do wrong, not our institutions. It is men, not institutions which must be punished."

Chicago, Nov. 1.—(AP)—The mid-dlewest, into which President Hoover personally has carried his campaign four times in recent weeks, will again be invaded by the Republican presidential nominee.

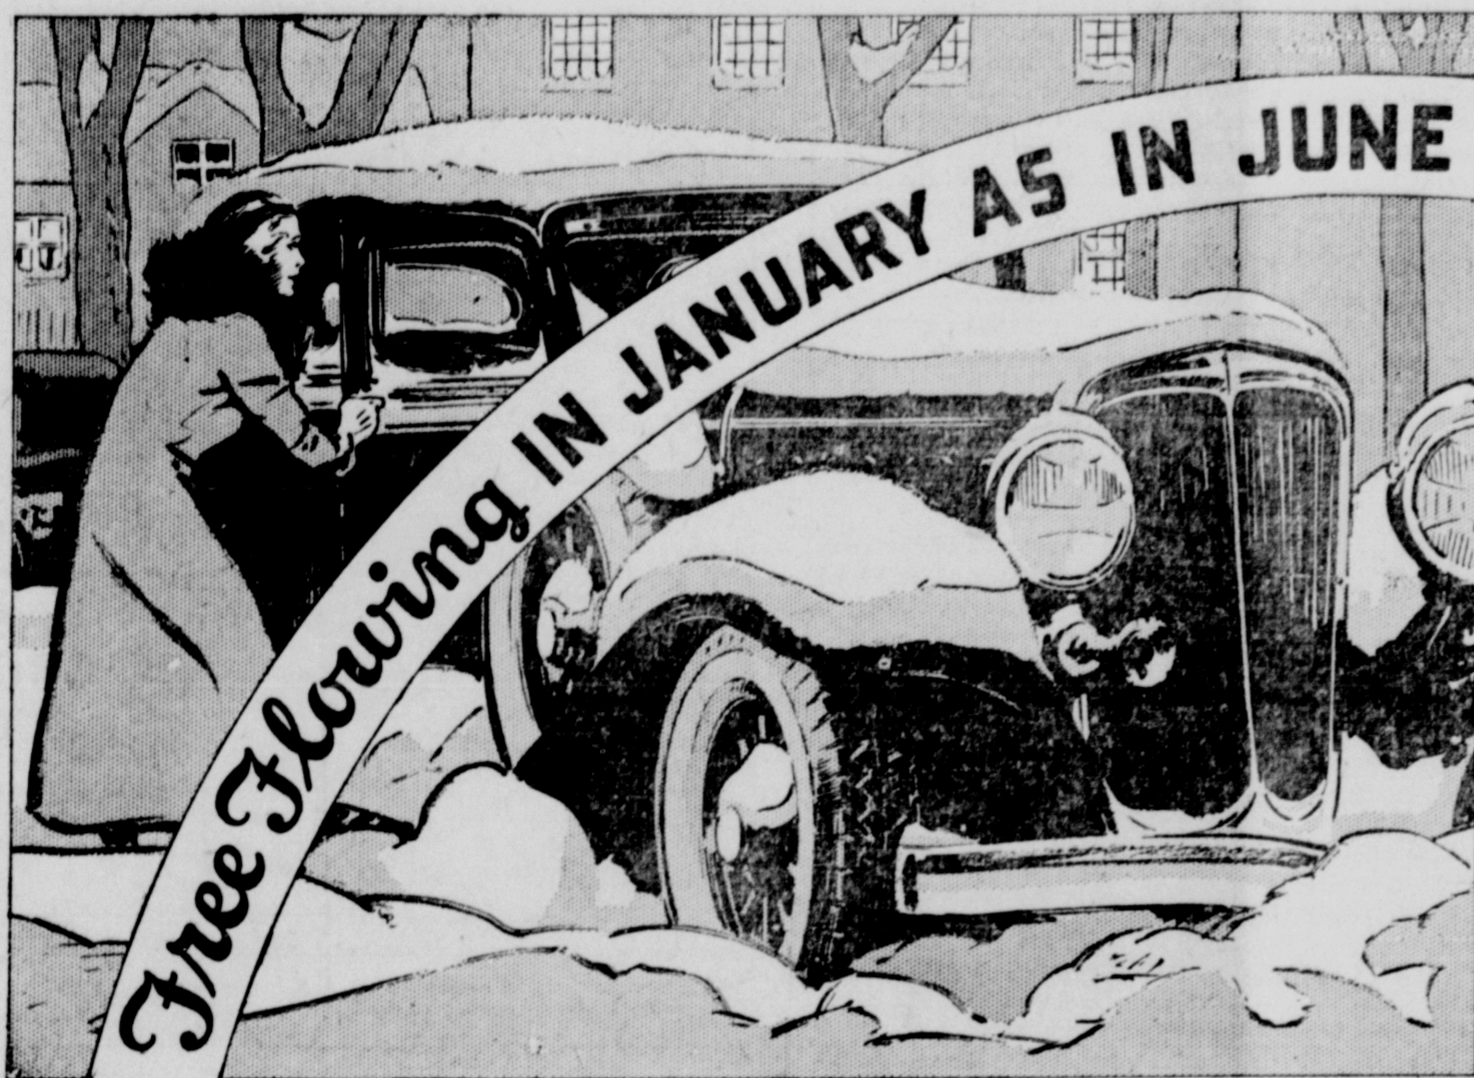

Republican national headquarters announced last night the President would speak at Springfield, Ill., Friday afternoon and at St.

Louis Friday night.

Campaign leaders declined comment on the possibility of President speaking at Minneapolis Saturday night, an appearance which has been urged on Mr. Hoover for the past two months.

NEW WINTER PUMPABILITY

Permits Starting at 30° Below Zero Lubricates 80% Faster

Automotive engineers agree that the scoring of bearings and pistons in cold weather is usually caused by failure of stiff oil to circulate during the crucial warming-up period. New Cold-Proof Tiolene gives positive protection because it flows freely—pumps freely—in spite of stiffening cold.

Years of scientific research, backed by 500,000 miles of winter road tests, have perfected a process by which Tiolene has been made cold-resisting without the sacrifice of one degree of vital heat-resistance for which this Super-Pennsylvania oil is famous.

To you this means that free-flowing Tiolene will insure easy turning of the motor...instant protection of cold bearings and pistons, because it can be pumped at 30° below zero—circulates 80% faster than ordinary dewaxed oils. It also means that, once the motor is hot, Tiolene will keep its body...lubricate safely for more miles.

Pure Oil Dealers and Service Stations now have the new Cold-Proof Tiolene in the correct grade for your car. It is the cheapest investment you can make in carefree winter motoring. Have your crankcase drained and refilled, tomorrow. Be safe—at a saving.

THE PURE OIL COMPANY, U. S. A.

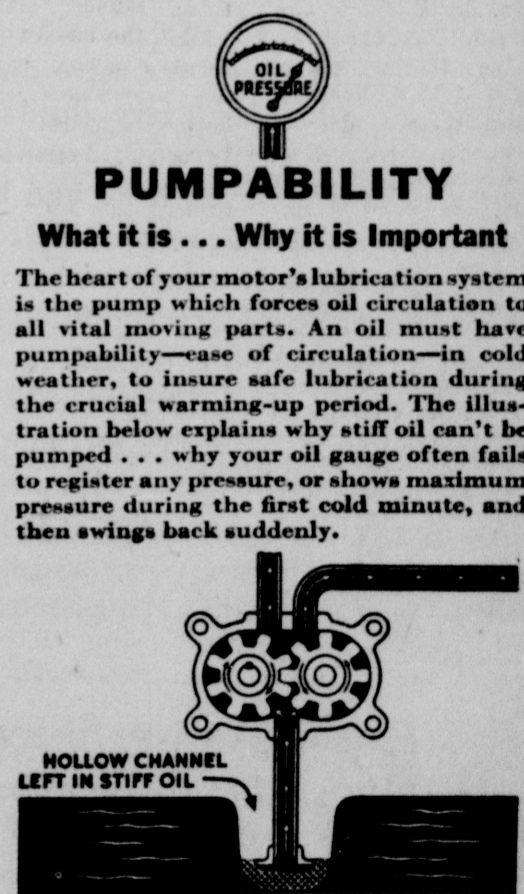

NEW cold-proof

Tiolene

100% Super-Pennsylvania MOTOR OIL

Sold in Sealed Bottles for Your Protection

The oil has to be drawn from the reservoir, through a wire mesh, into the pump. If the mesh is fine, cold-stiffened oil clogs it instantly. If the mesh is coarse, the pump sucks up the oil nearest it, leaving a hollow channel in the stiff oil, through which the pump sucks air until the surrounding oil warms up sufficiently to flow into the intake. This warming-up period sometimes takes as long as 15 minutes, during which time starved bearings and pistons are scored because of failure of the oil to circulate continuously.

Cold-Proof Tiolene now has pumpability at lowest winter temperatures—a quality so long wanted in heat-resisting oils. It insures instant and continuous oil circulation—safe lubrication from start to finish.

With Conditions Changing from Hour to Hour, It Is Difficult to Figure on Empire State

By CHARLES P. STEWART.

New York, Nov. 1.—(P)—New York is not merely a politically doubtful state; it is kaieidoscopic. It changes from day to day, almost from hour to hour, a little one way, a little the other. The stupendous bulk of the metropolitan area's population, its amazing mixture of ingredients, the utter impossibility of foreseeing its reactions with any certainty—these things have much to do with making the problem so baffling. But up-state New York is puzzling also. Morning papers the other day remarked on the lightness of registration beyond Manhattan and its immediate environs. Expert political diagnosticians interpreted it variously, depending on opposing party affiliations. That same afternoon's late editions related that, after all, the voters had turned out in unexpected strength at the eleventh hour, with the result that registration was the heaviest on record.

Jeffersonian experts may interpret all they like, but ordinarily a heavy up-state registration is a Republican symptom, the up-state realm being normally the Republican part of the commonwealth, with New York City nearly always Democratic, to an extent gauged by the degree of Tammany's liking for the ticket.

Just how warmly the Tiger approves of Franklin D. Roosevelt and Col. Herbert H. Lehman, who seeks to succeed him in the gubernatorial chair, is a matter of guesswork.

Ostensibly perfect harmony prevails.

Nevertheless, an individual very high in Democratic councils (for manifest reasons I cannot name him) told me:

"An overwhelming Democratic majority below the Bronx, much as it is desired, probably will prove to be less absolutely necessary this year than it generally is, because of the exceptional up-state strength of both Governor Roosevelt and Colonel Lehman. They will not actually lose the city even if Tammany is lukewarm, and a smallish metropolitan margin is likely to be more serviceable to them than a comparatively large one in 1928 was to Al Smith, with a heavier rural handicap to overcome."

The fight between Senator Wagner for a Democratic re-election, and his Republican opponent, U. S. District Attorney Medalle, passes virtually unnoticed among other contests. This seems strange to a visitor accustomed to giving a Washington valuation to seats in the upper house of congress, until it is reflected that the prestige and patronage of high office in so huge a city as Manhattan or so great a state as New York outweigh anything except the most exalted rank in the general government.

Maybe this explains, too, why New Yorkers speak of their rival state tickets as pulling the corresponding national tickets through with them, rather than vice versa, as is the rule elsewhere.

They do speak thus, anyway, and the authority I already have quoted was frank to recognize Col. William J. Donovan, Republican aspirant for the governorship, as a candidate of capital advantage to President Hoover, in the president's campaign for the Empire commonwealth's 47 electoral ballots.

"If I've heard it said once," observed my informant, "I've heard 100 New Yorkers say 'Wouldn't it be fine if we could have Lehman for governor and Bill Donovan for mayor?'—which would be impossible, of course, for Donovan is a Buffalonian. Still, the point is plain enough.

"But what," I asked, "is the matter with Surrogate John P. O'Brien?"—the regular Democratic mayoralty nominee.

"Oh, nothing," was the rejoinder, "except that he's too obviously a mere rubber stamp—afraid to draw a long breath without Tammany's permission.

"To be sure," my anonymous acquaintance consoled himself, "it would be worse if the Republicans had a hard-hitter up to oppose him. Lewis H. Pounds is a mighty nice old man, but with no more experience, at 71, to fit him for the mayoralty than a baby."

It is fair to add that practical Republican politicians endorse this estimate with convincing unanimity.

Incidentally, it generally is agreed that Morris Hillquit will get a record Socialist vote for mayor. His campaign, indeed, is attracting more attention than Pounds', if not O'Brien's. Naturally it is not expected that he will get anything out of it except the satisfaction of a creditable showing.

As previously remarked, conditions change in New York with bewildering rapidity.

A few hours after my chat at Democratic headquarters, during which Colonel Donovan's popularity was so freely admitted, Al Smith went into the Colonel's record at some length, in a speech in Newark, and when he was through, believe me, there were evidences that, in certain circles, the Colonel was materially less popular.

What Al did was to analyze the Colonel's reply to Al's complaint that he (the Colonel) was affiliated with a group which Al accused of mobilizing religious prejudice against him four years ago—which was particularly resented by Al, as against the Colonel, from the circumstance that they are of the same faith.

A flat-footed denial from the Colonel would have raised a plain question of veracity between the pair. Al succeeded, however, in maneuvering the Colonel into the position of pleading simply that he was in a minority in the group, so what could he do about it?

Anyone who ever has listened to Al Smith scarcely needs to be told that he did not deal with this subject to the Colonel's advantage. It may seem like a personal rather than a political issue, but personalities enter extensively into New York politics—much more so than in the west, where argument centers on principles; very little upon individual likes and dislikes.

It makes Empire State campaigning mighty colorful, anyway. New York state not only is doubtful; it may appear definitely the very end, how to vote—and then flop on election day.

Poetry For Today

BROTHERHOOD
Let's be glad, O soul of mine!
Glad for autumn's golden shine;
Glad for summer's scented bowers,
Glad for winter's happy hours;
Glad for azure skies above,
Glad for home and friends and love;
Glad for eyes with which to see,
Glad for earth's sweet minstrelsy;
Glad for lips with which to sing,
Glad, my soul, for everything.

Let's be sad, O soul of mine!
Sad for every base design;
Sad for hunger and distress,
Sad for burdens which oppress;
Sad for those who weep and mourn,
Sad for those who are forlorn;
Sad for those who bear the Cross,
Sad for sin and sad for loss;
Sad for lips which have no song,
Sad my soul, for every wrong.

Two-fold must our nature be,
If we love humanity.

THE NATIONAL WHITE ELEPHANT

(And It's Not the G. O. P. Elephant — But Everybody's)

A NEW YORKER AT LARGE

By MARK BARRON

NEW YORK—The sudden blossoming of James Farley as an outstanding leader in politics piques the interest of this observer.

Some years ago, while taking a flyer as a boxing writer, I had many opportunities to observe "Big Jim" during those sessions of the boxing commission down at No. 2 Lafayette street.

I long wondered why he bothered holding such a post. It doesn't pay a dime salary. Finally I dismissed it by explaining to myself that he must look upon it merely as an amusing hobby. He does have an amazing Irish sense of humor, and he certainly couldn't have avoided getting an abundance of laughs out of the idiosyncrasies of the stumblebum industry.

LIKES RACING, BOXING

His favorite sports are horse racing and boxing. He is a fashionable but extremely quiet dresser. The rainbow sartorial effects that most of the boxing crowd goes in for probably discouraged him from trying out a flashing wardrobe.

He is an enthusiastic humorist, but the one thing you can't jolly him about is that bald head. As one would expect of such an Irishman, when he loses his temper he explodes. But the storm quickly passes and he is once more his pleasant, smiling self.

An actor, whose purse has been considerably bent, waltzed into a Seventh avenue establishment with the information that he was going to Hollywood.

"I've got three companies after me," he boasted.

"Sure you have," retorted an intruder, "the gas, electric light and telephone companies."

Mayor McKee attended a musical comedy the other night, the first time he has ever been reported seen partaking of rialto night life. And ex-Mayor Jimmie Walker has moved into a new apartment in a Park avenue hotel.

High Spots In Ohio History

The great-great grandfather of the late speaker of the National House of Representatives, Nicholas Longworth, acquired a great portion of his wealth almost in spite of himself.

A client, having no money, offered to pay Longworth with two stills. Longworth had no desire for the stills, but, finally seeing there was no possibility of obtaining any other settlement, he accepted the stills and allowed them to lay in storage.

About that time, a hotel proprietor named Williams, hearing of the stills, offered to trade 22 acres of land lying on the west side of what now is central Avenue, between Sixth and Seventh streets and running west, in Cincinnati.

Willing to accept any sort of a deal to dispose of the stills for which he had no use, Longworth took the land and held onto it while, through the years, the city built up around the tract.

Of course, the lawyer was making money in other ways, and using it in improvements, but the city growing around the property was the greatest factor in the making of the Longworth fortune. Before he died, this Longworth was the heaviest taxpayer in Hamilton county.

ISS Mildred Todhunter has devoted the past few weeks to the preparation of a program of French folk music for presentation before the Cecilia Music Club on Tuesday afternoon and before the mothers and friends of the young participants on Thursday evening at half past seven o'clock. The program has been anticipated with unusual interest.

Miss Todhunter has directed a number of grade school girls, who will present the songs and dances of the five French provinces. Her year abroad in study and travel gave her personal acquaintance with the peasant life and music of France and she is well prepared to put on the program.

Mrs. Fannie J. E. E. is the program with a paper on folk music, in which she traces the characteristics in the folk music of all countries, the influences they have made on the operatic and symphonic music of later times, the background of folk songs and dances and how they have been handed down through the centuries by continual repetition and not by written record. She stresses the French folk music and suggests a short visit to France to hear and see French folk songs and dances by children in peasant costume.

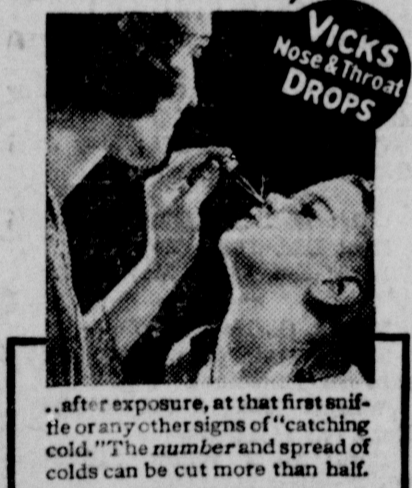

This introduces the youngsters trained by Miss Todhunter, who will present the following numbers: Brittany—Talk by Lolita Cook, accompaniment by Betty Cook—

FEWER SCHOOL DAYS LOST DUE TO COLDS

Remarkable Results of New Colds-Control Plan of Special Interest to Mothers and Teachers

Last winter, comparative tests of Vicks Plan for Better Control of Colds were made among 862 children in nine schools. A group of 429 did not follow the Plan—and lost a total of 501 days on account of colds. The other group of 433 followed the Plan—and lost a total of only 178 days on account of colds. A saving of practically two-thirds in school time! Each Vicks package contains full details of this unique Vicks Colds-Control Plan.

A treasure hunt and amusing contests were planned for entertainment and clever prizes were awarded to Betty Browne, Robert Woodmansee, Harry Townsley and Jean Palmer.

Miss Mildred Todhunter assisted Mrs. Paxson in the entertaining.

ROTARIANS HEAR ABOUT JAPANESE

SUPT. RAY HARRIS TALKS INTERESTINGLY

One of the most interesting and enlightening addresses to which Rotarians have listened in recent months, was delivered at the regular weekly session of the club at the Cherry Hotel, Tuesday noon, when Ray Harris, Superintendent of the Greenfield Schools, talked on the Japanese, their customs and conditions.

Mr. Harris has the faculty of giving such an accurate and interesting description of everything that his auditors, at the conclusion, feel that they have really gone with him and viewed the same things that he has seen, and in his talk on Japan, Tuesday, he was at his best.

He told of the Japanese as a nation, and as individuals, their customs, hopes, ambitions, and present economic conditions, the latter at the present time, being bad.

Mr. Harris visited Japan the past summer, so that the information given was not only first hand but so recent that all who heard him felt that they had a present day picture of the Japanese.

LIVING AND LOVING

SEVERAL GIRLS are excited over the letter from the boy who signed himself "Patiently Waiting." He was patiently waiting for a girl friend who was not a gold digger, he said.

SYMPATHETIC GIRL says: "With all this depression I think any girl ought to be satisfied with a show, a soda, perhaps a ride and some necking. The girls you have previously dated must be in for quite a large order when they can't refrain from gold digging. They can't have brothers who go with such girls. "Maybe I am different because I have felt sorry for my older brother, who has been treated the same way by girls. I vowed when I first started dating that I would never gold dig but treat the fellows as real pals as long as they treated me the same.

"You asked whether there were any girls who could go out with a fellow for an evening, have a good time and think as much of him as if he were a millionaire's son? I, for one, have, can, and always will be a partner for a good time without feeling that I am so much that a fellow must spend a bank on me."

There is a hint in this letter for the girl who can't get along with her brothers. A sympathetic sister who makes a chum for her brothers can get many a hint about the best way to make herself popular with other boys. Of course, I would not advise a girl to cultivate her brothers solely for selfish reasons, but even if she did, she would find she was getting a great deal of pleasure from the association and might be able to help them a little on the side—which should be an added pleasure.

CREEKS BEGIN A LIGHT FLOW

Following Heavy Rainfall Over Monday

Following 1.58 inches of rainfall Monday and Monday night, Paint creek is beginning to flow lightly, and at noon Tuesday the water was beginning to accumulate in the reservoir caused by the Water Company throwing a dam across Paint creek at the pumping station, with indications that within the next two or three days the flow might top the dam and start the stream through the city to flowing steadily once more.

The storm water from the streets of the city, added to that from other drains, caused a light flow of the stream through the city, but not sufficient to flush the stream.

In fact it will require a steady flow of some volume to thoroughly flush the channel throughout the city.

No water has passed over the dam, at the water works plant for over ten weeks, and since that time the water had receded until only shallow stagnant pools were to be found in the main channel of the stream.

Reports Tuesday also indicated that Sugar creek and Rattlesnake creek were showing evidence of light flow, after having been dry at points for two months or more.

MOTORIZED DISPLAY CAR TO SHOW HERE IS SOMETHING NEW

A motorized display car containing a complete display of General Electric refrigerators and electric ranges is being shown all day Wednesday in front of the Craig Bros. store and promises to be something "out-of-the-ordinary" in advertising lines.

Those who have seen the car, which consists of large motor unit and trailer and is more than thirty feet in length, say that it is as clever an outfit as one could expect. The whole display is in white with the replica of a G-E refrigerator at each corner and the whole unit represents a giant refrigerator. Inside is ample space for the display of several of the monitor top boxes and ranges with aisle for the accommodation of visitors.

Wherever shown this display has caused comment both from the originality of the idea and the manner in which the display is made. Craig's invites the public to visit the car during its stay in Washington all day Wednesday.

FLASHES OF LIFE

Mt. Clemens, Mich.—Charles Fresard, at 85 years, still is a firm believer in the institution of matrimony. He has just taken as his sixth bride Mrs. Marie Sprandburg, 63. It is the second marital venture for the new Mrs. Fresard.

Chicago—Said eight-year-old Lindy Johnson to Judge Jay A. Schiller: "Didn't you ever soap a window when you were a kid?"

Said the court: "Yes, I did."

"Well," continued Lindy, "what do you think of a man who soaks a kid in the jaw just for soaping a window? There're lots of windows that'd never get washed if it wasn't for kids like me."

Judge Schiller answered by fining Henry Olson $10 for "socking" Lindy.

Falls City, Neb.—John Buchholz, 18 and brawny, doesn't know his own strength. To find out and to demonstrate to several friends he went into a graveyard and pushed over 14 tombstones.

A judge decided to put him in jail for five days and ordered him to pay the cost of restoring the markers.

Harrisburg, Pa.—Just what sort of winter awaits Pennsylvania continues to perplex the "goose-bone" prophet. His chief collaborator, the caterpillar, seems to be on the fence this year. Black-headed caterpillars mean a cold, old-fashioned winter. Light-colored caterpillars are harbingers of a mild winter. This year, farmers report, caterpillars, for the most part, are spotted.

Alton, Ill.—Justice of the Peace Forman wonders what's the matter with cupid. He offered to perform his first marriage ceremony without cost. That was two weeks ago but there have been no takers.

Chicago—"The trouble with law and government," said Clarence Darrow, the attorney, "is lawyers. They are interested in preserving the past. There is nothing sacred to them unless it has existed before. They are against everything new." His opinion was expressed in an address.

COUNTY GOVERNMENT CHANGES POSTPONED

Cincinnati, Nov. 1.—(P)—The end, for this year at least, of the campaign for a constitutional amendment to revise Ohio's county governments was announced today by Charles P. Taft, 2nd, chairman of the executive committee of the state organization backing the movement.

Taft announced that 208,000 signatures had been obtained to petitions asking that the proposed amendment be placed on the ballot for action at the 1933 election. The petitions, he said, will be filed with the Secretary of State within a few days.

LIES TEN HOURS WITH BROKEN BACK

ROXBEL MAN HAS HARROWING EXPERIENCE

With his back broken and paralyzed from the waist down, Harley Bay, 44, of near Roxabel, lay for ten hours at the foot of a hickory nut tree from which he had fallen while gathering nuts, Sunday, being found late in the evening by C. R. Ward.

He was carried to his home and later removed to the Chillicothe hospital where his condition is very critical.

Bay, formerly a Western Union lineman, had gone nutting by himself and had fallen between two large stones. He was shivering with cold and weakness when found.

The injured man had pulled leaves and twigs toward him and kindled a fire, which had soon burned out.

and installment payments for future taxes and for taxes already past due.

Ingalls repeated charges that Gov. White's legislative record "revealed him as opposed to enactment of the 19th amendment granting women the right to vote, and also reveals him as having voted against the interests of American labor."

Bettman attacked Democratic tariff policies with the charge that "the Democratic plan to reduce the tariff" would result in "ruin to the present tariffs. Bettman said, 'American labor is suffering deeply because of cheap foreign competition.'"

Gov. George White and Senator Robert J. Bulkley provided the spearhead of Democratic campaigning in Ohio last night with addresses in Zanesville. Judge Florence E. Allen spoke in Cleveland and former Congressman Martin L. Davey made a series of addresses in the 14th district.

The Governor renewed his attack on David S. Ingalls, Republican gubernatorial nominee, with the charge that Ingalls has been "unwilling" to reveal his connection with the financial transactions of Continental Shares, Inc.

Heavy financial losses suffered by this company, Lieut. Gov. William G. Pickrel recently charged, were evidence that Ingalls, who was a director of the concern, lacked business ability.

Ingalls' only response, White said, was a "personal attack" on Pickrel, who answered the Republican candidate almost immediately.

Bulkley opened the final week of his campaign by reiterating his advocacy of repeal of the 18th amendment and accused his Republican opponent for the senate, Attorney General Gilbert Bettman, of speaking for repeal in the cities, but of remaining silent on that issue when in the smaller communities.

Judge Allen, member of the State Supreme Court, seeking election to Congress, attacked the Democratic doctrines of the Republican party, particularly the tariff.

Davey spoke on behalf of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic presidential nominee. Roosevelt, he said, is a "sane progressive," whose intuitive thinking runs toward the hard-pressed common people."

President Hoover he said, attempted "to lead the people by the use of false doctrines while they were struggling through the morass of despair."

Toledo, O.—(P)—Lowel Watson, 30, was acquitted of an assault and battery charge arising from a riot in the court house here, Oct. 17. Police said he was a Communist leader.

GOV. ROOSEVELT PROMISES ACTION

works already authorized. "In addition there has been long overdue a reduction of the hours of work and the number of working days per week," he continued. Roosevelt told his audience that the administration "cracks the whip of fear over the backs of the American voter."

"Another means of spreading fear is through certain Republican industrial leaders," he went on. "Some of those 5,000 men who control industry are joining in the chorus of fear initiated by the president, the secretary of the treasury (Mr. Mills) and the Republican National Committee."

Roosevelt asserted "they are telling their employees that if they fail to support the administration of President Hoover such jobs as 'they have will be in danger, are empty gestures."

"The ballot is the indispensable instrument of a free people. It should be the true expression of their will. It is intolerable when that is coerced—whatever the form of coercion—political or economic."

"The autocratic will of no man—be he president or general or captain of industry—shall ever destroy the sacred right of the people themselves to determine for themselves who shall govern them."

"The administration attempts to undermine reason through fear—to tell us that the world will come to an end on Nov. 8 if they are not returned to power for four years more."

"It sadly misconceives the good sense and self-reliance of the people."

"The president complains because I have charged that he did nothing for a long time after the depression began," he said. "That is true. I add to that charge that from the time this report was published in 1923 for the six years that preceded the crash in 1929 he did nothing to put into effect the provisions advocated by Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover in 1923 against the possibility of a future depression."

"President Hoover cannot get action from the Congress," he continued. "He seems unable to cooperate. He quarreled with a Republican Congress and he quarreled with a half Republican Congress. He will quarrel with any kind of a Congress. He cannot get things done."

"This is something you must consider. The next Congress will certainly be Democratic. I look forward to co-operation with it."

"I have been able to get things done in Albany by treating the Republican Legislature like human beings and as my associates in government."

The candidate said in last night's speech that he favored "continued protection for American agriculture."

"I favor more than that," he said. "I advocate measures to give the farmer an added benefit, called the tariff benefit, to make the tariff effective on his products."

"The most enlightened of modern American business men likewise favor such a benefit. An excellent example is your own fellow citizen, Mr. Harriman, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, who has recently proclaimed a plan for the restoration of agriculture, not unlike my own. President Hoover does not favor a program of that kind. He has closed the door of hope to American agriculture and when he did that he closed the door of hope to you also."

"He says proudly that he has effectively restricted immigration in order to protect American labor. I favor that, but I might add that in the enforcement of immigration laws serious abuses have been revealed."

"But he does not tell you that by permitting agriculture to fall into ruin millions of workers from the farms have crowded into our cities. These men have added to unemployment. They are here because agriculture is prostrated. A restored agriculture will check this migration. x x x"

"The president began this campaign with the same attitude with which he has approached so many of the serious problems of the past three years," Roosevelt said. "He thought to create the impression that there was no campaign just as he had sought to create the impression that all was well with the United States."

"But the people of the country spoiled the plans. They demanded that the administration which they placed in power and which has cost them so much, give an accounting."

Roosevelt's Boston speech was the last of his more important declarations. He will speak at Brooklyn and New York City this weekend, but both rallies will largely be state and local affairs.

MARKETS and FINANCIAL NEWS

DAY'S ACTIVITIES IN WALL STREET

By CLAUDE A. JAGGER

New York, Nov. 1.—(P)—A rather decided downward drift developed in an extremely sluggish stock market today.

Trading continued around the smallest volume in recent years, but in view of the paralysis of buying, scattered selling was enough to reduce prices by 1 to nearly 4 points in spots. The list recovered a little at times, but rallies failed to hold. Renewed heaviness of wheat was evidently a bearish factor in stocks.

Union Pacific sold off as much as 3 3/4 points, and extreme losses of about 3 appeared in American Telephone, Allied Chemical, Case, Louisville and Nashville, although there was some recovery from the lowest. Issues off 1 to 2 included Consolidated Gas, Dupont, New York Central, U. S. Steel, United Aircraft, and Westinghouse. Standard of New Jersey sagged nearly a point, then stiffened. Socony-Vacuum lost a point, in response to the dividend reduction. Oils as a whole, however, were fairly steady.

Preliminary estimates of last week's crude oil production indicated a substantial drop in the flow as a result of curtailment in Texas and California. Ordering of the regular 25 cent dividend, and the usual extra of like amount, by Standard of N. J., was a reassuring development, but had been anticipated. It was partly offset by Socony-Vacuum's ordering of a payment of only 10 cents, against 20 cents three months ago. Earnings statements of the oil companies, however, continue to show small profits in contrast to large deficits a year ago. Continental Oil Co. of Delaware reported net equal to 7 cents a share for the September quarter, in contrast to a deficit of $2,955,322 in the like period of 1931.

Most brokerage quarters thought the poor third quarter earnings reports had been largely discounted. Oils appeared to be the only major group showing marked improvement, although the complete third quarter reports of the railroads in spots. Even the utilities are showing some rather substantial recoveries in net. Consolidated Gas of New York reported third quarter net of only 37 cents a share, against 49 cents in the like period of 1931.

Selling of the rails appeared to be based on the belief that the seasonal upturn in the movement of freight had reached its peak in the week ended Oct. 15. The last two months of the year normally see a considerable tapering off. Santa Fe, first of the larger trunklines to report for the week ended Oct. 27, showed a decline of 2.270 cars from the period ended Oct. 22.

Ordering of the regular quarterly dividend of 25 cents a share by Chrysler late yesterday, while reporting a deficit of roughly $5,300,000 for the third quarter, strengthened the belief in Wall Street that General Motors would order its regular dividend of 25 cents at the directors' meeting tomorrow. On Sept. 30, last, General Motors had cash and marketable securities amounting to $209,000,000 and the quarterly dividend requires roughly $10,800,000.

BLUE LIONS

GET SET FOR LONDON

Another Fast Ball Toter Must Be Dealt With in Friday Game

BUT THAT'S NOT NEW

Several Others Have Been Stopped This Year

The Washington Hi Blue and White team is rapidly getting in shape to meet London Hi at London next Friday afternoon.

The entire team came through the Greenfield game with only a few bruises and bumps as a remembrance of a heavier team's driving and tackling. Monday evening a workout was held on the high school gymnasium floor where a few new plays were explained by Coaches Maurer and Cramer.

But very little "dope" is available concerning the Londoners but some news has trickled in from training camp to the effect that the Lions will face another speed merchant. This "dope" is that Bass in their backfield, although no wonder, is a dangerous player and will need watching all the time. But the Blue Lions have looked at speedy backs in every game but the Greenfield tilt and Washington Hi stopped Perrin Smith of Cedarville who won the state 109 and 220 yard dash last year. Newark's speedy backs were completely bottled up for the entire game. Nesser on the St. Mary's team was one of the most flashy backs to oppose Washington this season but he only broke away at a few times. The St. Mary's team won on team merits and not on the merits of Nesser. Then Kenecht at Chillicothe was fast. Hillsboro's Marshall and Ellison were stopped in first class shape. In all of these games it was only by hard blocking that a speedy back ever broke away.

The defeat of Newark marked a change of the Lions and now the team is primed for the remaining three games of the season. Some of the headiest football shown in a Blue Lion game was that displayed by Paul Anschutz in the last quarter of the Greenfield game when the Lions took the ball on their own 2-yard line and had it within scoring distance in less than two minutes of play but unfortunately the game ended. Greenfield was caught flat footed by the Lions when it was fourth down and fifteen yards to go. Leisure dropped back for a punt but handed the ball to Anschutz who circled left end for first down on a version of the always dangerous Statue of Liberty play. Then Leisure's spinner through line gained much yardage.

The Blue Lions can still win as many games as they lost last year by defeating London, Logan, and Wilmington in the order named.

Passing Attack By Northwestern Faced by Ohio

BUCKEYE LINE TOO STRONG HANDLEY BELIEVES

Chicago, Nov. 1.—(AP)—A couple of teams that figured to be right up among the leaders in the Big Ten football title battle—Ohio State and Northwestern—will meet Saturday to try to salvage something from so far dismal seasons.

Northwestern probably will rely almost solely on forward passes against the Buckeyes. Coach Dick Hanley figures Ohio's line to be about as good as those at Minnesota and Purdue, and his running attack having been stopped dead by the latter pair, sees passes as the only way of winning Saturday. The Buckeyes will try to get their own running game going, hoping to gain on the ground as Minnesota and Purdue did against the Wildcats.

Michigan will have Stanley Fay available for duty for the first time in two weeks, against Indiana, although he probably will not start. The Wolverines will work on their passing maneuvers and the Hoosiers will spend a good share of the week in its preparations for the Chicago tussle. The Boiler-makers will be long favorites, but have been well warned of Chicago's habit of springing upsets.

While not taking the Mississippi game too lightly, Minnesota will keep one eye on the Wisconsin game a week from Saturday, while the Badgers are polishing up a running attack for use against Illinois. Illinois plans to stick to forward passing.

This year's Drake-Notre Dame football game was the last in a seven-year series. Friendship of the late Knute Rockne for Ossie Solem, a fellow Norwegian, started the relations.

Notre Dame Team Revamped After Pitt's Trouncing

THREE REGULARS DEMOTED AS FIRST STEP IN SHAKE-UP

South Bend, Ind., Nov. 1.—(AP)—A drastically revamped Notre Dame football team snapped into practice today as Coach "Hunk" Anderson sought to prevent a repetition of his team's unexpected defeat at the hands of Pittsburgh.

Three men were missing from the regulars' line-up—Capt. Paul Host, end, Nick Lukats, left half-back, and Ben Alexander, center. Moved from the second team to fill their places where Hugh Devore, Mike Koken and "Kitty" Gorgan.

That's just a start, Coach Anderson threatened. There will be other shake-ups if the team doesn't capitalize upon its potential power. Revamping of the lineup gave fresh impetus to rumors that discussion had crept into the ranks of the regulars, and that Coach Anderson's action was taken to present a team in future grid engagements that, if beaten could lay defeat solely upon the other team, not internal discord.

Catarrhal Deafness Can Be Relieved

Persons suffering from catarrhal deafness or head noises due to catarrh will be glad to know that this distressing affliction can usually be successfully treated at home by an internal medicine that in many instances has effected relief after other treatments have failed.

Secure from Finley's Corner Drug Store or your druggist one ounce of Parmit (Double Strength). Take this home and add ¼ pint of hot water and a little sugar. A tablespoonful four times a day should stop distressing catarrhal head noises, improve hearing, make breathing easier and dry up mucous discharge. All catarrh sufferers need Parmit.—Adv.

JAZZ IT UP!

BASEBALL SIDE SHOWS

Put on in Minor Leagues in Effort to Boost Up Lagging Attendance

WILL PLAN WORK OUT?

Time Only Can Tell but It Was a Last Resort

By WILLIAM RITT

Old-time ball fans must look with something akin to horror on the plans of certain minor leagues to jazz up their shows next summer, to turn their ball parks into three-ring circuses of which the league game would be nothing more than the prize attraction—like the blood-sweating rhino—of a conglomeration of unrelated entertainment.

The move, of course, is contemplated solely because of a desperate need for increased attendance. If 1933's minor league gate receipts fall much below those of 1932, minor league baseball may come to an end.

That's the situation—so don't be too critical if minor league magnates grasp desperately at ridiculous ideas to bolster their falling trade.

However, this department isn't so sure but that the medicine the baseball doctors are prescribing may prove too potent. Adding side-shows to baseball games may in the end prove fatal. Here's why:

The real baseball fan may be annoyed at having his sport cluttered up with entertainment for which he doesn't care a hang. The curiosity seeker, whom the magnates hope to lure through their gates, may soon become tired of the show—he can get better entertainment.

And then, what will the magnates do? They may find themselves no longer appeals, yet they may be afraid to drop it for fear that they will lose those spectators who have become accustomed to it.

Circus stuff was tried by a few magnates with success this season. Several clubs held chicken races around the base paths before game time. Fans with tickets bearing the number of the winning fowl won the chickens.

Others held beauty contests, trap shooting matches, automobile and radio set raffles.

These attractions proved almost universally successful. Coupled with night baseball games they drew crowds which remained delighted club owners of the "golden age" of 1928 and 1929.

But will they continue to appear? There's the big puzzle behind which lurks the fate of minor league baseball.

However, one must give the harassed magnates credit—the boys are in there trying.

Ohio's Best Team Ready For Game

Columbus, O., Nov. 1.—(AP)—Barling injuries in practice, Ohio State is expected to send its full gridiron strength against Northwestern Saturday. Even Junius Ferrall, veteran end, whose injured leg has kept him on the sidelines since the Michigan game, probably will be in shape for the Wildcat clash. It was predicted by Trainer Tucker Smith.

The return of Ferrall would mean the benching of Joe Salvatore, who was one of the bulwarks in the Pittsburgh and Wisconsin games. Otherwise the Buckeyes will remain intact for Saturday's contest.

Protest Made When Friedman Not In Lineup

FANS DISAPPOINTED WHEN HE FAILS TO PLAY, CLAIM

Chicago, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Dr. David Jones, owner of the Chicago Cardinals of the National Football League, today filed a protest with Joe Carr, president of the league, because of the failure of Benny Friedman, to play with the Brooklyn club against the Cards last Sunday at Wrigley Field.

Jones' protest said that Friedman had accompanied the Dodgers to Chicago last Monday, but had departed for New York Wednesday, leaving word that he would return for the game. He failed to return, however, and Jones charges that there was no time to war the fans he would not be in the lineup.

The Cardinal owner asked Carr to "take steps to prevent a recurrence of this breach of ethics."

MARCHIONESS

FOR AUCTION BLOCK

World's Fastest Trotting Filly to Go to Highest Bidder Next Month

YES, BLOOD WILL TELL

Peter Volo Is Sire of Four Top Rank Trotters

Special to The Herald

Goshen, N. Y., Nov. 1.—Peter Volo, the great sire owned by Walnut Hall Farm, Lexington, Ky., today held new laurels as a result of the achievement of his daughter, The Marchioness, 1932 three-year-old champion, in beating the present record for three-year-old fillies and in equalling the present three-year-old trotting record.

Her mark of 1:59 1/4, established at Lexington the other day, was a quarter of a second faster than the mark held jointly by her half sisters, Charlotte Hanover and Hanover's Bertha, and equalled the mark of her full brother, Protector, 1931 champion three-year-old.

Since all four horses were sired by Peter Volo, that great stallion now has the distinction of holding a present-day world's record. The Marchioness, youngest of his present get in actual racing, lowered her own recent two-minute record over the Kentucky Trotting, Horse-Breeders Association Track, the same course over which Protector established his record.

It was the same Will Caton, who broke training and raced Protector to the championship in 1931 and the Marchioness in 1932, winning victory in the 1932 Hambletonian Stake, who sent the great filly to her newest record and probably her last. She is to be sold at auction next month when the thirty-eight annual Old Glory Sale is conducted by the Fasig-Tipton at the Squadron A Armory, New York.

There are indications this year, according to E. J. Trantor, president of the Fasig-Tipton Company, that this year's sale will top the sale of 1931. Last year there were but 400 head of horses sold at the auction. This year there are indications that the sale will draw more than 450 when it is held from November 21 to 25.

Green Bay Best Defensive Team In Pro Football

FOES GAIN AVERAGE OF BUT 128 YARDS A GAME

New York, Nov. 1.—(AP)—The champion Green Bay Packers are the best defensive outfit in the National Professional Football League.

The Packers have permitted the opposition to gain only 899 yards in seven games, an average of slightly more than 128 yards per game. Second place in this division of play belongs to the Chicago Cardinals who have allowed 746 yards in five games, an average of 149. The weakest team in this respect has been Brooklyn with an average of 230 yards per game.

Stapleton has gained the most yardage, 1,406 in seven games; Green Bay has scored the most points, 84; and the New York Giants have the best passing record with 42 completions in 96 attempts.

SPORT SLANTS

By ALAN GOULD

There will be less money at the end of the golfing rainbow this winter, but the competition for the $40,000, or so, will be just as keen as when there was in the neighborhood of $100,000 to shoot at in a winter's campaign to California, Texas, Florida and North Carolina.

There will be slightly in excess of $25,000 hung up in California, against almost as much again in more prosperous times. The rich Agua Caliente stake in old Mexico has taken another cut. When this event was launched in 1929 the sum of $25,000 was there for the boys and the same sum was made available in 1930.

There was a reduction to $15,000 last year and this season another 50 per cent cut has been made, so the total prize money will be only $7,500.

The Los Angeles open, long a fixture at $10,000, has been cut in half and $5,000 will be the prize money this season. Pasadena and Santa Monica will put up $6,000 between them and San Francisco's match play open will be good for $2,500 plus 75 per cent of the gate receipts.

STARS WILL BE THERE

The reduction in prize money probably will reduce the number of players competing, but the golf will be just as good. The pros who do not figure to participate to any great extent in the prize money may not feel disposed to risk "fare" and hotel expenses, but the stars will be in there shooting for the cash.

One of the most prominent bidders for the prizes is Olin Dutra, P. G. A. champion. Dutra recently added to his collection the Southern California open with a 72 hole total of 277, just 69 1/2 strokes to the round, serving notice to his fellow pros that he will be hard to top when the firing begins in earnest along the golf front.

HERE'S A NATURAL

Incidentally, the golf fans are wondering if a four ball match can be made next January between Sarazen and Bob Jones on one side and Olin and Mortie Dutra on the other. This would be a "natural" and would attract a great gathering. Bob will be in Hollywood soon after the first of the year to make a motion picture.

Leo Diegel and Jones last year played a sensational match against the Dutra brothers for charity, the affair finishing all even when Bob made a great shot from water close to the pin to save the day for his side.

Leo in a round at Mexico City the other day set a new course record of 66, shaving a stroke from a previous mark of Horton Smith. Leo's example was so good that his partner, President Rodriguez, made a new personal record on his own account.

CHAPTER 23

THEY WERE pleasant to her.
Short, dark, energetic Monsieur Du-pluy, who was not his wife's social equal, but made up for it financially;
Madame Duplay, slimmed, groomed, with her shingle in the same stiff modeled waves as French pompa-dours had worn in wartime. She had a gay manner as hard, as unbreakable and armored as it was unchanging.

They had Emilia down in the large salon occasionally. It was smartly furnished with the new angular furniture, hung with pictures more modern than that; mostly amused caricatures of the art of the eighties.
Queer, shapeless statues, stood about,
stiff, amiable ancestors of madame's hung here and there, the oddest things in the world among the rest.
Emilia brought the little girl down, sometimes, to talk to friends of her mother's. And she was being taught to handle people from the first; it was as much a matter of course as her dancing lessons. Emilia sat quiet, waiting to resume Anais when Madame Duplay signaled. But she heard talk.

She remembered Robin, his red-brown eyes alight, speaking proudly, passionately of the thing he fought for, "A world like one big room. All the people in it happy and friendly and playing games."

The world was like one big room
now. But the people in it seemed to her herded in a tenement. They talked about a Russia like a giant's nightmare, a Russia that frightened her, lying alone at night. Not the heroic Russia Robin had written poems about, to be freed, to be noble.
Emilia and Anais did well together,
and Madame Duplay praised her,
though it seemed to her she had established very little human contact with her pupil.

There was a year of this. Then one night there was to be a big political dinner. It was spring, and Emilia was more alive than she liked.
"Maman says you are to put on your demi-toilette, the gray, Mees Amelie, and I am to wear my new blue organdy; and we can watch the people coming in from the top of the staircase above the entresol; and if anyone sees me and says, 'Oh, that darling child, I must run up and kiss her.' I don't think Maman would make me run away."

Anais' greatest joy was people, parties, social excitements of all kinds. This was not the first time they had watched from above, Emilia's task to curb the exuberant child's intention to dash down into the middle of the party on any pretense. She smiled; the organdy and the gray crepe were insurance in case of a dash and rescue.

She oversaw the maid who put the thrilled Anais into the blue organdy, dressed herself in the quiet governess costume she had bought under ma-dame's supervision, and prepared herself for the boring vigil at the top of the wide staircase's well.

She took a firm hold of Anais' thin, brown hand under the bright light. The hall below was blazing.
The footman stood by the door.
There was an excitement and tensity which even Emilia began to feel. It was a very important dinner-party.
"There are Americans coming tonight," Anais said. "Look and see if you know any of them, mees."

She laughed gently at the child.
"Why, Anais, have you already forgotten the population of the United States, when we had it only yesterday? And I haven't been back since I was very young. It's impossible I should know anyone." But underneath she was shaken. Whether she liked it or not life was pushing her out of her twelve years' dream, her twelve years' hiding. . . .

They entered by twos and ones,
glittering sure middle-aged women,
erect, mannered men, mostly rib-bioned and medaled. Anais knew many of them. She wriggled with excitement and pointed them out to Emilia.

"That's the Comte de Lanoy. That's Madame Quercy the journalist."

Emilia stared at the pretty clothes passing beneath her, with a girlish pleasure which surprised herself.
Long skirts again—they hadn't yet penetrated to even the most fashionable ladies of little Brienne. Emilia was following with her eye, childishly, the exquisite black lace draperies, under the golden cloak, when Anais' whisper disturbed her—
"Look, mees, that must be an American. See how his shoulders are cut, and his carriage. . . ."

The man who was entering, smiling down at the woman beside him, speaking pleasantly over his shoulder to the couple behind him, was Roger.

He was very little changed. A little broader, perhaps; a little more pallid than she remembered him—her memory had been, of course, of the tan from the outdoor life of war;
a great deal more dominant, sure, cool; a bigger personality, a bigger force. In a moment, a swirling, dazed moment, he had passed with the others into the salon—but not before she had seen him fully and clearly.
The man he had turned to greet, entering behind him, was an elderly statesman whom Emilia knew by sight, Darnay. She knew that the quick greeting he had for Roger was given with the honest pleasure he felt for few of his friends. And Roger, answering in the same fluent English-accented French of old, was suddenly in the moment the Roger she had loved and commanded and laughed at; his head, half turned in speaking, was the smooth, fair head, with one small top lock trying already to break its moorings. She had pushed that lock down, and her mother had, many years ago. And his voice, just the same, no, not quite. A little more swift and positive than of old. It was some ordinary phrase he spoke, "Why, what luck to find you here too!" But it brought back the old Roger, the Roger she had held to all the long dream-years, had loved unknowingly, unchangingly. She knew it, seeing and hearing him. This great gentleman who was so far removed from her, alone by marriage, but by place, by thoughts, by his oneness with the world of today, where she was a frightened ghost. . . .

Roger, unchangingly dear! And not her Roger, not even a part of her dreams of the past, her only world, any more.

"Did you see anyone you knew?"
persisted Anais, pulling at her hand.
"If you did, I'm sure Maman would let us come down for a minute."

"For a moment I thought so," said Emilia, "but—no. I have been away from America since before you were born, Anais. I have nobody there now."

"I couldn't stay away from home as long as that," said the French child. "I'd go back home."

Emilia paced her little room after she had turned Anais over to her nurse. She had tried to mend, to study—she was a little shaky still in all these Merveignans the French adored so—but she could do nothing.
Roger was not here even in that range of dreams where she had lived.
Nothing was hers any more.

And then she heard clearly, as if it had been spoken aloud, Anais' phrase, "I'd go back home."

She stopped short for a moment.
Why not?

"I will go back," she said. She did not know that she was flying from Roger in Paris, Roger! Married, of course, to Abby these many years.
Children. Children that were—oh, she could at least be decent enough to hope they were—a comfort to her father, making up for the children the war had taken. Living in the old Scarlett house, overlooking the green lawns where she and Roger and Robin had played.

Madame Duplay was annoyed. She had expected Emilia to be a fixture.
But she was an intelligent woman.
And she saw, too, that this Emilia, shaken and overstrung, eye-circled and absent minded, was not the placid near-nun she had hired for her child. Something had upset her badly; she certainly would be bad for Anais if she did go to pieces. So she sped her politely, if coldly, on her way.

"I'm pretty sure," said Anais, "that she saw somebody in the hall from America."

But nobody pays attention to a child's melodramatic imaginings.
